

Dare To Wear T-Shirts

The Dare To Wear T-Shirt line is part of a marketing plan that calls attention to on-line art exhibits of the work of Julia Ann Kennedy and other Gulf Coast artists. Our prototype site, Biloxi's Original Sin™, has been running for a year; please visit biloxisoriginalsin.com to see our wicked take on promoting Gulf Coast artists.

The cities of Biloxi and New Orleans long have been considered sinful destinations, thorns in the side of the evangelical South. Some believers proclaimed Hurricane Katrina the righteous "Hand of God" administering justice on an evil people. For artist Julia Ann Kennedy, prominently featured on the Biloxi's Original Sin™ website, this came as no surprise. Thirteen years earlier, the Catholic Bishop of Biloxi condemned her entirely innocent work as "demonic" and succeeded in having it removed from a Biloxi gallery. Dare to Wear T-Shirts aim to redress the Bishop's lack of imagination with ever changing mantras and messages made especially for the tongue-in-cheek believer in all of us (See attached slogan samples).
